EASTERN CLUB MAY SUPPORT LOCAL SQUAD

New York Yankees Willing to Finance Victoria Team in New League

EIGHT-TEAM CIRCUIT MAY START NEXT YEAR

By ELWOOD R. RIGBY
(Special to The Colonist)
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Two American League teams, the New York Yankees and Connie Mack's Athletics, may support franchises in the proposed new Class D circuit in the Northwest, it was authoritatively reported here today.
The Yankees and Athletics, it is said, are endeavoring to persuade Pacific Coast League interests, which are behind the movement to organize the proposed circuit, for the permission to back clubs in Vancouver and Victoria. The Athletics desire the Vancouver franchise and the Yankees Victoria. Connie Mack and the two Shibe brothers, John and Tom, who own considerable stock in the Portland club, of the Coast League, are reported to be keen on financing the Vancouver project.

RECENTLY VISITED COAST

Tom Turner, president of the Beavers, and Ira Thomas, chief scout of the Athletics, recently visited the British Columbia metropolis and placed their stamp of approval on existing conditions there.
Victoria comes into the picture as the result of a friend of Ed Barrow, general manager of Babe Ruth, and company, desiring to have the Yankees support a franchise there. The friend of Barrow, whose name was not divulged to the writer, is a wealthy resident of British Columbia, and is willing to finance the club providing New York management can secure the consent of the Pacific Coast League officials to have the Yankees supply the playing talent. It is also said that Barrow has even agreed to go fifty-fifty on the financing.

SEES GOOD PROSPECTS

Ira Thomas, who recently returned here after a month's stay in the Northwest, believes there are great possibilities in the proposed new league. He is especially enthused on the prospects in Vancouver.
"Put the proposed club in Vancouver and I'll wager the franchise will be a good investment from every angle," declared Thomas. "Spokane, Victoria and Tacoma should also be very good. I believe the circuit may get going by next season. It has to be said, however, that the original plans of certain Pacific Coast League officials was to have only a six-club affair, but now it appears as though the new circuit will be made up of eight teams, according to Thomas."

BIG HYDRO PLANT BEING PLANNED

Project Would Furnish Power for Four Saskatchewan Cities for Many Years

REGINA, Sept. 21 (CP).—Saskatchewan's projected hydro-electric power scheme, with the Saskatchewan River east of Prince Albert as the source of supply, will involve preliminary capital expenditure of $15,000,000 and an additional $3,000,000 a few years later, according to the report of Prof. H. O. Acres, of Toronto, expert appointed by the Saskatchewan Government to investigate the project.
The report, which has just been received by I. A. Thornton, chairman of the Saskatchewan Power Commission, indicates that sufficient power can be generated at Horse Shoe Bend to take care of the maximum requirements of the cities of Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Prince Albert for a number of years before it would be necessary to resort to the use of steam as supplemental power for periods of maximum demand.

GENEVA, Sept. 21 (AP).—China formally called on the League of Nations today to take action in the Manchurian affair in order to "safeguard the peace of nations." MAY DELAY C.N.R. WORK

Construction of Montreal Terminals May Be Suspended by Government

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP).—In view of the heavy expenditures already made, the large amount of money needed for its completion, the matter of delaying work on the Montreal terminals "is receiving the very serious consideration of the Government."
No decision has been made yet, a statement issued by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, said today.
Dr. Manion admitted the financial condition of the Canadian National Railways was such that very little, if any, of the $57,000,000 interest due in 1931 could be met from earnings, making it necessary for the Government to meet most or all of this amount.
Work on the terminals to date has cost over $6,000,000, Dr. Manion said, and the completion of the project would take something over $30,000,000 more.

Asks Mines To Support Gold Reserve

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP).—According to a newspaper story in The Toronto Star today, the larger Canadian gold producers have been requested by the Dominion Government to forward to the Mint at Ottawa gold bullion shipments, which ordinarily would be sent to the United States Mint at New York, because of the discount on Canadian funds.
"It is understood that this request does not involve an embargo on gold shipments from Canada," The Star continues, "but is merely made as a temporary measure to strengthen the Government's position at this time."

More than 1,400 men were reported at work on provincial emergency projects yesterday in Engineering District No. 1, which includes Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the District of Vancouver. This is the largest number of men employed at any one time in connection with road work at these places.
The total reported at work is 25 per cent of all who were registered in these areas, including all classes of transients, municipal and provincial residents, and considerably more than 50 per cent of the number for whom the Province is directly responsible. The work for the most part is road construction and improvement of existing roads, on the previously announced programme released by Hon. R. W. Bruhn.

It was believed the explosive was thrown from a passing automobile. Little material damage resulted and no one was injured.

During the war he commanded No. 1 General Hospital, and prior to the outbreak of hostilities he was closely identified with the organization and training of Army Medical Corps units in Saint John.

He has, in turn, been Canadian representative on the interallied committee on disabled soldiers, and has held important posts in connection with the Canadian Red Cross, and was Dominion president of the St. John Ambulance Association.

SEA ROBBED OF AVIATORS LONG ADRIET

Wily Rody and Companions Rescued After Six Days on Atlantic

FOUND NEAR POINT WHERE LAST SIGHTED

HALIFAX, Sept. 21.—Sparks from a freighter's wireless gave notice today that happy events were in store for one of aviation's greatest stories. Safe aboard the motorship Belmoira are Wily Rody, the German who invested his inheritance in a second-hand airplane, Christian Johansen, who was at the controls when the sea set out from London seven days ago, and Fernando da Costa Viera, the Portuguese sportsman who went along for the fun of it.
A week ago tonight New York's metropolitan airports were ablaze with lights to guide Rody and his companions to their goal. As hope for their safety turned to apprehension, the crew of the sea were riding out the hours on their floating plane off Newfoundland, as the lights paled into dawn and the anxiety dulled to near forgetfulness with the passing days, they were still riding.

SAFE AND WELL

Tonight they were snug and well. The Norwegian tramp that picked them off the face of the Atlantic.
Only Rody and Johansen and Viera could tell the story of six days' life under the threat of thirst, starvation and storm.
The story was known only by implication tonight. Heading eastward, the Belmoira refused to give out details of the rescue. Rody and his companions were in the position of weary men who have gone to bed and pulled out the telephone plug.
The sea, bound from Juncal del Sal, Portugal, to New York, was sighted by the eastbound liner Pennine last Monday, September 14, at 1:40 p.m., Eastern standard time. The Pennine was about eighty miles southwest of Cape Race, about 100 miles off Halifax. The plane had been in the air about thirty-three hours.

MISSING SIX DAYS

For more than six days not a word of the flyers' fate was heard. Then, early this morning, the Belmoira, bound from Albany, N.Y., to Leningrad, was heard in Halifax receiving drifting wreckage believed to be that of Rody's plane. This afternoon she reported picking up the flyers.

The three flyers were picked up by the Belmoira in the Atlantic, which they were sighted by the Pennine.
From the meagre information available, it is deduced here that Rody, Johansen and da Costa Viera struck aviation's "blind spot," where the metallic deposits of Zell Island are believed to influence the intricate system of transatlantic fuel, and flew in circles until their fuel was exhausted.

LOGGING TOWN IS ENDANGERED

Comox Logging Company Settlement Near Courtenay Scene of Fire

COURTENAY, Sept. 21 (UP).—Flames menaced the lumbering settlement adjacent to the Comox Logging Company, near here, Sunday, when four oil tanks exploded, one bungalow was demolished and the roofs of eight other homes caught fire.
The blaze took on the proportion of a small conflagration, and lumbermen and their wives fought frantically to stem the scorching tide of flames.

Their efforts were heart-breaking in the face of the singing heat, and the flames licked from roof to roof as a high wind fanned them, and burning embers flew in all directions.

MADE RAPID HEADWAY

The outbreak occurred about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and was caused, it is believed, by a defective fuse in one of the homes. The bungalow was soon a mass of flames, which leaped from house to house even before residents could rescue their effects.
Forces were concentrated on the threatened area and household furniture and other valuables were hurried to safety. One crew rescued the household effects while yet another crew attempted to keep the fire under control. The situation already appeared hopeless when the flames reached four oil tanks and a terrific explosion occurred.

ASSISTANCE ARRIVES

For half an hour following the explosion the settlement seemed doomed. Then the chemical truck from Courtenay arrived, and with the aid of experienced firemen and chemicals the blaze was brought under control.
The Courtenay fire department saved the town from destruction, R. J. Filberg, superintendent for the Comox Logging Company, declared.

Need of Unity Now Greater Than Ever In British Empire

A. E. Hyland, Australian Trade Delegate, Eulogizes Canadian-Australian Treaty—Hopes to See Reciprocal Policy Followed Up

UNITY within the British Empire is needed just as much in peace times as during the war and the United Kingdom probably has never before needed the bond of Empire relations more than she needs it today, A. E. Hyland, director of Australian trade publicity in the United Kingdom, declared in an address at the Empress Hotel yesterday.
The address was delivered at a luncheon of Australian representatives with delegates from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Chambers of Commerce and other organizations. The meeting was held to mark the arrival of the first ship of merchandise from Australia under the Canadian-Australian trade treaty.

READY AT ALL TIMES

The director of publicity referred to the time of war and spoke of the aid from all parts of the Empire they should be as ready in peace times to assist.
The various speakers pointed out that the production of fruit in Australia had been largely through the placing of ex-service men on land which had been irrigated. The country in fostering this trade was helping the men who had served with the colors in the war.
Mr. Hyland referred to the trade treaty entered into between Canada and Australia as a most important agreement. He hoped it would benefit Canada as well as his own country. To do this there must be complete reciprocity as between the two countries, he asserted.

NOT COMPETITIVE

The two Dominions were not specially competitive. They were, in fact, supplementary in many ways. The seasons alternated in such a way as to favor trade between them. The climates also were complementary.

Ray Andrews suffered minor cuts and bruises, but was able to go home after receiving first aid.

TRUCKHAND IS BADLY INJURED

T. W. Eberts in Grave Condition Following Fall From Top of Wood Truck

Thrown to the pavement from the top of a wood truck Sunday, T. W. Eberts, of Chemainus, lies near death in the Chemainus General Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and probable internal injuries.
According to Constable O. L. Hall, of the Provincial Police, Eberts was riding on top of a wood truck driven by Garrett Andrews when the accident happened.

With Eberts was Ray Andrews, brother of the driver. The truck was proceeding along the main highway through Chemainus when it suddenly swerved and threw both Eberts and Ray Andrews to the roadway.

READY AT ALL TIMES

The director of publicity referred to the time of war and spoke of the aid from all parts of the Empire they should be as ready in peace times to assist.

ROAD SCHEMES ARE OUTLINED

Patrick Philip Tells Gyros of Proposed Highways Throughout B.C.

Considerable information regarding highway construction plans and unemployment relief connected with them, to be carried out by the Provincial and Federal Governments in British Columbia, was given by Patrick Philip, deputy minister of the Provincial Department of Public Works, to members of the Gyro Club at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

"In connection with the relief scheme now under way, the most important part of it is the proposed Transcanda Highway, starting at Victoria, via Nanaimo and Interior points to Yoho Park," said Mr. Philip. "There are also four other routes being planned," he continued, "all linking with the main line."

"Although it is possible to take all the unemployed and place them at work on these highways, it is not plausible nor economical," he said, "since it is not fair to remove a man from his homestead to go on relief work forty or fifty miles away."

He pointed out, however, that the scheme, Mr. Philip stated, was not intended to take farmers for the road building, and men who were not destitute.

NEED GOOD ROADS

Prior to this explanation, the speaker told of the importance of transportation to progress, and the necessity of good highways to the province. The only progress that has been made with highway construction has taken place in the last twenty-five years, Mr. Philip said.

"The Public Works Department is only concerned with the conditions of the roads," he asserted, "and with the loads carried over them."

High tribute was paid by Mr. Philip to the Provincial Police of British Columbia for the manner in which they co-operate with the department in enforcing these regulations. He stated that the force was "second to none in Canada."

The Automobile Club of British Columbia also gives wholehearted support, it was learned.

SACRED RIGHT

"The most sacred of man's rights is the use of the King's Highway," the speaker said, "and when it is abused by a few, drastic action has to be taken to curb the abuse. Records show that the majority of accidents on the North American continent occur on the straight roads rather than on the dangerous curves," he continued.

Returning to the subject of the relief camps to be established under the scheme, Mr. Philip stated that only British Columbia products would be used in them, with the Federal and Provincial Governments and the municipalities each paying a third of the expense.

DO WORK THOROUGHLY

"In these times it is up to every service club to assist the Government in its work," he said, "and offer suggestions rather than criticize. Government road building is not done in a haphazard way," he declared, "and when boards of trade and service club members advocate the construction of highways, they are the ones who complain in a few years of the high tax rate entailed in which they co-operate with the millions of dollars which these highways cost."

"All problems connected with construction are carefully considered by the Public Works Department before being submitted to the House, in order that there will be no additional sums needed to carry on," Mr. Philip concluded.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CHEW YOUR FOOD

One of the hopeful signs of the times is to see the number of individuals who are now willing to have their own teeth removed owing to infected roots and also pyorrhea.

Formerly it meant months of waiting until the gums would be in good firm condition to have a permanent set of artificial teeth put in. Now, however, just as soon as the gums have healed, a matter of days, a set of temporary teeth, or a partial set, as the case may be, can be worn, and the individual is not ashamed to be seen on the street, and what is even more important, he can actually chew his food.

Is chewing important?

During the war the teeth were almost the first thought in so far as the physical examination of the recruit was concerned. He must have at least one grinding tooth immediately above or below another grinding tooth so that some chewing could be done.

Chewing the food gives it a real start in digestion. Some individuals are able to bolt their food without chewing it and enjoy a fair measure of health, but most of them will have gas pains in stomach or intestines. Chewing the food gives the digestive juice of the mouth a chance to get well mixed with the food, thus changing the starch into sugar, and breaking up the starch granules, which if not broken up in the mouth may pass through the stomach and small intestine, and when finally broken up in the large intestine give rise to a great deal of pain from gas pressure.

Chewing also gives the digestive juice a real chance to moisten and soften the food, thus making it easier for the stomach to prepare it for further digestion and absorption into the blood from the small intestine.

Another point that should be remembered is the part the brain plays in digestion. When the food is well chewed the taste buds in the mouth are aroused by the flavor of the food, the brain thus sends impulses to the digestive glands in the mouth and they then pour out more digestive juice to act on the food.

It is certainly a real health habit to chew your food properly.

DEFENCE OPENED IN MOTOR SMASH

W. H. Maxam, on Stand, Testifies of Circumstances of Collision at Fernwood and Pandora

W. H. Maxam, charged with driving to the common danger, was on the stand in the police court yesterday morning at the resumption of trial adjourned from last week. He told his version of the collision on August 4, between the Road and Pandora Avenue at night of August 4, when Russell G. Stinson, taxi driver, sustained injuries following a collision. He was still on the stand awaiting cross-examination when the case was again adjourned to Monday, September 28.

Mr. Maxam said he had been driving an auto for the last fifteen years and had never been charged with an accident. At the time of the collision on August 4, between his auto and the taxi, he was on the street, and he was not going more than five miles an hour when the impact occurred. He described the intersection as a T-junction, and stated that he had stopped at the "stop sign" and proceeded slowly towards the centre line of the intersection because, he testified, there were certain obstructions which prevented a clear view of the right traffic lane. He saw the sudden flash of lights and applied his brakes, but it was impossible to avoid the collision, he said in his evidence.

MEMORY NOT CLEAR

Due to the shock of the impact, he said, he did not know what his auto had been turned around, and his memory of things that followed was not very clear. He stated he did not recall the trip to the police station, but remembered the officer asking him to make out a report.

"At first I thought I could, but I found I couldn't," he said.

On questioning by his counsel, Stuart Henderson, Mr. Maxam detailed the events of the evening, places he had visited with friends, and described the route he had followed in his car after leaving a friend's home in Oak Bay up to the point of the accident. Asked if he had anything to drink, the accused replied he had one glass of beer in the forenoon.

During the morning hearing, the court will move to the court yard below when examination of a witness took place concerning condition of the two autos, which are still in police hands.

MR. STINSON TESTIFIES

Russell G. Stinson, who gave his address as 609 Moss Street and his employment as a taxi driver, testified briefly. As intimidated by City Prosecutor L. Harrison, prior to the trial, Mr. Stinson was unable to give any clear idea of what happened for some time before the accident. Mr. Stinson was injured about the head and has since suffered a lapse of memory concerning the accident.

Percy C. Winckler, 619 Toronto Street, testified he was one of the first on the scene after the accident. He said he saw Mr. Stinson lying on the ground and Mr. Maxam sitting in his auto. Stuart Henderson and Roy Manser are acting for the defendant, and City Prosecutor C. L. Harrison and R. C. Lowe for the prosecution. The case will be concluded, it was stated, next Monday.

Alpine Club Has First Expedition

The Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada began its season's activities, Saturday, with a half-day outing to Mount Blin-Korn and Single Hill. A party of fourteen members left the city at 1 o'clock, and under Gordon Cameron's guidance climbed to the summit of the two hills, descending to the lake at the base of Mount Blin-Korn for the alfresco tea, which is always such a welcome feature after these expeditions.

The club's next climb will be an all-day expedition to Bluff Mountain, on Saturday, September 26, members returning to the Sooke Harbor Hotel for dinner. There will be a programme of less strenuous character for those who can only spend the afternoon in the district, details of which may be had from C. L. Harrison, convener of outings, or Mrs. Fleming, Cadboro Bay.

RELIEF GIVEN SMALL CHILD

Citizens' Committee Distributes Clothing as Contributions Received

"Was it God's mother?" was the query of a four and a half years' old child when told that the shiny, new shoes were sent by a kind lady. The tiny tot had prayed for new shoes, an appeal was made in The Citizenist, and prompt response was given. The little girl's happiness has been increased by additional pairs, which were purchased for her little brother, a sister from donations earmarked for that particular purpose," a representative of the Victoria Citizens' Unemployed Relief Fund said yesterday.

More than $150 was collected before noon yesterday, representing many small amounts from low-salaried citizens. The strong support for the campaign was shown by this section of the community was explained by one visitor, who said: "The needy must be helped, and if those who should not do their share, we must; but we had hoped it would not be left to those least able to afford it to bear the brunt of the burden."

"In order that the campaign may be a complete success, so that want and misery shall be alleviated, we are making a special appeal to wealthy citizens. Victoria is not lacking in citizens who could give thousands of dollars more easily than others cheerfully contribute their dollars. A serious condition exists, and every one of us is responsible in proportion to our ability to help. And money given for this worthy cause pays dividends in the satisfaction of duty well and truly performed at a time of great national emergency."

Contributions should be sent to headquarters, View and Broad Streets, telephone Garden 1725, or to the city treasurer, E. C. Smith, City Hall.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 5:15 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. The danger hours are from noon to 2 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

September 22, viewed astrologically, will be a mildly favorable day, but does not hold forth any spectacular or eventful expectancy. Normally will be the keynote, and under such inf. ences, speculation and risk should be avoided, and nothing out of the ordinary should be attempted.

A child born on this September 22 will be intellectual, studious, well informed, and an excellent and interesting conversationalist. In early years its opinions will be quite extreme. Age will mellow and moderate its views, however. It should not marry young, and its standards of value will, with increased age, undergo a complete metamorphosis.

You, if born on September 22, are happy-go-lucky. You take life as you find it, and make the most of it. Come rain, come shine, you never worry nor do you ever become unduly elated. Ambition does not grip you, and very little satisfies you. Indolence is not, however, one of your virtues. Indifference is your outstanding weakness. Only on infrequent occasions, do you give a thought to life's problems, and then you snap out of it as quickly as possible.

You are free from worry, and your ability in making the best of what may be a bad job, endears you to many, and your friends are legion. The congeniality of your disposition is infectious, and, by your attitude, you are often able to relieve the cares of others, and enable them to be content and happy.

glimpsee the silver lining of many dark clouds.

If a woman, you are naturally shy in the society of men, but once you have thawed, you prove yourself to be a sympathetic companion and a dependable friend. You are not a nagger, nor a gossip-monger. Your heart is capable of a strong and passionate love, and your horoscope denotes that you will make some man supremely happy.

Both men and women are not exceptionally neat or tidy, neither are they fussy. They may not be from the world's point of view, successful. They are destined, however, to be content and happy.

BIMETALLISM

Whatever may be said about Britain's Coalition Government, it does not lack courage. There have been few if any administrations throughout history that have taken the bit in the teeth in quite the same way. It has evolved economies aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars to apply over a single fiscal year. Now it has stabilized the price of silver. This step was thought advisable because the marked appreciation of gold has had the effect of placing silver-using countries at a disadvantage, as has been evidenced by their continually decreasing foreign trade. Most authorities are agreed that the decrease of purchasing power is a potent cause of unemployment which, in turn, is the grave economic issue of the time. This situation gave rise to the resuscitation of an almost extinct theory affecting monetary standards; in other words, bimetalism again has become a live question. Bimetalism is an international problem which, on a really effective scale, can only be handled by an international authority.

Britain's object in introducing a measure of bimetalism is to restore the economic equilibrium in the world. What will be the reaction of other countries is not known. It is known that there must be a material rise in world prices so as to enable silver to be conducted profitably. In other words, with this end in view silver is being restored to a position as money co-equal with gold at a given ratio. The bimetallic standard may conceivably be at the rate of twenty to one. This approximates the exchange value of the Indian rupee. At present, the gold in the vaults of the world's banks approximates $10,500,000,000. The silver would exist in little over $1,250,000,000. It would be valued at a dollar an ounce, which approximates the twenty to one ratio.

There is a conception held by banking experts that fixing the price of silver at a dollar an ounce will mean increased production. It is possible that, in connection with what Britain has done, the silver-producing countries will impose a tax of fifty cents an ounce on their output. This would have the effect of giving those who produce silver a net price which would equal that ruling some years ago. Ninety per cent of the world's silver is produced by the United States, Mexico, and Peru. The assumption is an agreement to arrange that the production of new silver. Presumably the daring step taken is based on consultations with the United States and Canada. In effect, it means the rehabilitation of silver. The result hoped for is that silver and silver values will rise and lead to conditions which will put an end to the world depression. In fact, the estimate of the British Government is that there can be a silver lining made to tinge the cloud of economic depression. What is proposed is to maintain silver as a small insurance share so as to obtain a stable standard of values. In effect, Britain has issued a call that "the total quantity of silver in the world shall flow into an international pool until its value has reached a predetermined level at which it may be marketed."

There is a local application to what is being done of particular interest to Canada, because this Dominion is one of the great silver-producing countries. Mr. R. B. Bennett and his colleagues have given every encouragement to the policy now decided upon by the Coalition Government of Britain. It may be recalled that J. F. Darling, one of the visited Canada. He had conferences with Mr. Bennett, and the support was given to his proposals for a temporary return to bimetalism. It may also be recalled that Mr. Bennett, who took the leadership at the Imperial Conference last year, proposed a reciprocal trade agreement between the component parts of the Empire. It is conceivable that if this proposal had not been opposed by the late Labor Government there would have been no need of any temporary abandonment of the gold standard, because the position of Britain's trade would have developed so greatly that it is wholly likely there would have been no monetary crisis. It is another illustration of the vision displayed by Canada's Prime Minister. He sought to introduce measures which would have meant that the day of reckoning could have been obviated. Instead, the Labor Government declined to accede to his proposals. The result is that the day of reckoning has come. Parasitic taxation in Britain has had its inevitable result. First, drastic economies became imperative. Now the gold standard has been temporarily suspended. Mr. Bennett, with clear-sighted vision, saw in the clearest possible fashion that the laws of arithmetic cannot be defied. No doubt, he visualized the currency depreciation which is now in evidence. He was aware how Canada would suffer. During the days of power of the Labor Administration in Britain trade unionism controlled the actions of that Government. It insisted on the dole, at all costs. It insisted that Britain should smother itself in debt in order that something should be given for nothing. There never was a more cataclysmic folly. Trade unionism sought, and was successful for a time, in coercing a Government. Where it failed was in deluding a nation in the long run. The Coalition Government is endeavoring to set to rights the illusory imaginings of trade unionism.

Canada remains on the gold standard. This is the announcement of Mr. R. B. Bennett. He regards what Britain has done as Britain's business. The impression is that what is happening in London will not affect Canada's position financially, except indirectly. It is conceivable, however, that it will be of assistance to this Dominion as a silver-producing country. The Prime Minister sees no reason to fall into line with Britain's policy, although it is obvious that he and his colleagues believe that Britain has done the right thing. Otherwise it is not to be supposed that Mr. Bennett would have given so much encouragement to the views advanced by Mr. J. F. Darling during his recent visit to Canada.

posed that Mr. Bennett would have given so much encouragement to the views advanced by Mr. J. F. Darling during his recent visit to Canada.

TRADE LOSSES

Britain is by far from being the worst sufferer in the present economic depression. Conditions in that country, however, are more widely known because the Old Land has the habit of facing trouble courageously, hiding nothing from international gaze and righting the difficulties which confront her with a full knowledge of the sacrifices that her people are called upon to make. Far from bearing the heaviest burden of a declining trade Britain is comparatively well off; certainly, whatever her plight, it is by no means as serious as that of the United States which continues to postpone the day of reckoning.

Recent figures emanating from Washington show that the United States has suffered an actual loss of $5,516,000,000 in her foreign trade during the last fiscal year. Her exports declined by $3,084,000,000 and her imports by $2,432,000,000. Her losses therefore were 34 per cent and 37 per cent, respectively. On the other hand, Britain's export trade increased in volume by 8 per cent since 1929, while in actual value her proportion of the world's export trade has fallen off by only 2½ per cent. The United States still occupies a good position despite the heavy fall in her trade because her favorable balance, that is of exports over imports, amounted to $651,000,000 for the past fiscal year. The average for the preceding five years was $720,000,000.

The fact is that British trade is standing the test of economic depression in a remarkable way. At this time no greater fulfillment could be given to industrial development in Britain than the imposition of tariff duties and the general adoption of such a fiscal policy. All signs of the time and utterances of political leaders point to this consummation. It is the one happening which will maintain the stability of the pound sterling beyond peradventure, and it is a political corollary to the economies which are being put into force in the realm of government.

WOMEN "STOOL PIGEONS"

It has been decided to use women no more as "blinds, decoys, or informers" in the enforcement of Prohibition in the United States. In this country the agents of such methods of law enforcement are called "stool pigeons." It has been found, wherever they are employed, that the morals of those who stoop to the methods in question are deleteriously affected, that enforcement of any law is not helped and that the practice is quite contrary to the ethics of how order should be maintained. In effect, the employment of "stool pigeons" is the commission of crime by authority in order that criminals may be detected. Thus one criminal is the stalking horse for another, and the anomaly is that while one escapes and is invested with the halo of having accomplished a smart trick, the other suffers punishment. The use of "stool pigeons" is, in effect, a criminal administration of the preservation of law and order. That women or men should be employed for such a task is a strange commentary on the stage of civilization we have reached.

ASHES

Laid in a quiet corner of the world
There will be left no more of me some night
Than the lone bat could carry in his flight
Over the meadows when the moon is furled;
I shall be then so little and so lost
Only the many-fingered rain will find me
And I have taken thought to leave behind me
Nothing to tell the long coming frost.

Now without sorrow and without cation
I can lay down my body nor deplore
How little, with her insignificant rations
Life has to feed us—but these hands, must they Go to the same blank, ignominious way?
And fold upon themselves, at last, no more?

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

These are the times that try men's souls.
—Thomas Paine.

"What a man!" exclaimed the illustrious (or notorious) Ma Kennedy after the first ceremony had been performed which united her in holy bonds to a brother evangelist, apostle, or explorer. It turned out that "What a man" already was joined in galling bonds with another woman when he was united by holy bonds with his spiritual affinity, but that trifling technical complication was speedily adjusted by a quick-action divorce court. The only courts of justice in the United States which move with celerity appear to be the divorce tribunals. That, we suppose, is because first things must come first, and the first thing to be considered is individual liberty. What a man and what a woman are now joined finally and unalterably (we trust not temporarily) in the holy bonds of matrimony, and have received an advertisement which will help them in their chosen work of exploiting the apparently fruitful field of evangelism.

If there are paradoxes in the religious life of the United States, there are paradoxes in the business situation in all parts of the world today. Surveying the business situation throughout the world today as revealed in the very latest dispatches, the involuntary exclamation of the perplexed observer of current events surely must be: What a world! There is a surplus of gold in the United States and a scarcity of money. There is a surplus of wheat in the world, and millions of people are depending upon other people to feed them. There are surpluses of all the necessities of life, and yet there is a famine in the midst of plenty. There is a surplus of people and a dearth of employment. There is a surplus of Governments and a surplus of taxes, and yet there are deficits in practically all treasuries. So the affairs of the world are badly out of joint, and those who have undertaken the job of setting things right clearly have a task of considerable difficulty upon their hands.

The paradoxical feature of the situation as it affects Great Britain is that its origin may be traced back to the war and its end to the after-effects of the war. During the war Great Britain pledged all her resources in material and men for the purpose of accomplishing the defeat of Germany. At the end of the war, when the representatives of all the powers had met in conference, the responsibility for the conflict upon Germany was repudiated, which Germany must pay. Germany had no money to meet her payments, and Great Britain lent her money to make her payments. The latter fact has been established. While all the powers concerned were drawing their regular instalments of reparations from Germany, and while Great Britain was getting her allotted instalments along with the others, none of the payments was made, by money drawn from the pockets of the German people, but from money coined out of the pockets of John Bull, who was performing the philanthropic part of striving for the rehabilitation of his supposedly stricken neighbor.

All the gold thus extracted from the pockets of John Bull ultimately trickled into the treasuries of the United States and France, where it lies—and gold unemployed is like labor unemployed; it produces nothing and contributes to the stagnation of business. When Germany could borrow no more money from Great Britain to meet her reparational instalments, she demanded and got a moratorium. The result was a foreign raid upon the gold reserves of Great Britain and the decision of the Bank of England to suspend payments in gold.

The critical financial situation of Great Britain was further complicated by the weekly raid upon the national treasury by the administration of the day. That moment of political and financial folly was incurred deficits at the rate of five million dollars per week, but the Labor Government was more concerned about the favor of the fickle God Demos than it was about the credit and security of the country, and refused to order the administrators of the dole to "balance their budget." A majority of the members of the Labor Government declared that if the Treasury was bare, the credit of the nation was good, and the money necessary to maintain between two and three million persons in perpetual idleness could be borrowed.

Fortunately for the country, there were few patriots in the Labor Cabinet, and the financial crisis in Britain is complicated by a political crisis. The future of Great Britain, therefore, will be determined either by the number of patriots in Parliament or by the number of patriots in the country if it should be necessary to dissolve Parliament and hold a general election. We suppose all Governments, like all people, make mistakes. Possibly we may be making a mistake in stating that the greatest mistakes of all recent Imperial Governments were that prosperity in the affairs of the country were more dependent upon external circumstances than they were dependent upon internal circumstances. But one fact is evident: The future of the British Empire depends upon the capacity of the British Government for setting the affairs of its own household in order. Thus far no British Government has ever failed to do that.

THE POET'S GIFTS
My mother gave me this life that goes
Through these pulsing veins of mine,
A part of the life of the world that flows
In palace and street and shrine.
My father gave me the power that sees
The thoughts that men's hearts would hide,
The insight which glimpses their destinies
And the forces that in them abide.
The love of my mother runs, pure and deep,
Through the whole of my life, like a song;
And the love of my father still fresh I keep,
Though the years that he sleeps are long.

Letters to the Editor

SAFETY FIRST
Sir,—May I, through your columns, call the attention of your readers to the appalling need of sidewalks in the city? Scarcely a street—except the one-block variety—has this improvement installed throughout its complete length on both sides.

Rotten wooden sidewalks are found in the older settled sections of the city, but these have long outlived their usefulness. Modern conditions require modern appliances, and these unsightly relics of the past ought to be relegated to the discard.

Concrete sidewalks have an average life of over fifty years; the first laid on lower Johnson Street, about forty years ago, being as sound as ever, whilst the average life of wooden sidewalks is usually less than twenty years. It is, therefore, economic to lay sidewalks of concrete.

As a measure of unemployment relief, this is one of the most useful improvements. The labor required is chiefly of a class, in which any able-bodied citizen can be used, and the materials needed are supplied by labor men, chiefly tributary to Victoria city.

That good convenient sidewalks supply safeguards for the childhood of our city, as well as provide for pedestrian traffic, cannot be gainsaid, and from that angle might reasonably be planned for and provided.

Usually any suggestions for sidewalks at the City Council's meetings are sidetracked, because it has been hoped that citizens requiring them should petition for them under the local improvement system. Permit me to say that there is not one good reason to further tax the citizens for these needed improvements. It is a most inconsistent view, and should be provided on every street out of common revenues supplied by taxation.

W. MARCHANT,

"TELL ENGLAND"

Sir,—I have viewed with much pleasure two showings of the above picture. The scenes showing the landing at Gallipoli are true to life in every detail. The terrain of the country as shown where the Anzacs and the Imperials made their memorable attack on April 25, 1915, leaves nothing to be desired.

I congratulate Mr. McGrath, the manager of the picture, for the very excellent British pictures he has been shown to be desired.

Sir,—The editorials, articles and letters in your paper on "beautification of our city" interest me greatly. I keep wondering when someone will use the simple English word beautify.

The scheme receiving the most propaganda is the Cotsworth-Eastman thirteen-month plan. Each month would have twenty-eight days of four weeks, which would be less than the solar year. THE POET'S GIFTS
My mother gave me this life that goes
Through these pulsing veins of mine,
A part of the life of the world that flows
In palace and street and shrine.
My father gave me the power that sees
The thoughts that men's hearts would hide,
The insight which glimpses their destinies
And the forces that in them abide.
The love of my mother runs, pure and deep,
Through the whole of my life, like a song;
And the love of my father still fresh I keep,
Though the years that he sleeps are long.

Letters to the Editor

SAFETY FIRST
Sir,—May I, through your columns, call the attention of your readers to the appalling need of sidewalks in the city? Scarcely a street—except the one-block variety—has this improvement installed throughout its complete length on both sides.

Rotten wooden sidewalks are found in the older settled sections of the city, but these have long outlived their usefulness. Modern conditions require modern appliances, and these unsightly relics of the past ought to be relegated to the discard.

Concrete sidewalks have an average life of over fifty years; the first laid on lower Johnson Street, about forty years ago, being as sound as ever, whilst the average life of wooden sidewalks is usually less than twenty years. It is, therefore, economic to lay sidewalks of concrete.

As a measure of unemployment relief, this is one of the most useful improvements. The labor required is chiefly of a class, in which any able-bodied citizen can be used, and the materials needed are supplied by labor men, chiefly tributary to Victoria city.

That good convenient sidewalks supply safeguards for the childhood of our city, as well as provide for pedestrian traffic, cannot be gainsaid, and from that angle might reasonably be planned for and provided.

Usually any suggestions for sidewalks at the City Council's meetings are sidetracked, because it has been hoped that citizens requiring them should petition for them under the local improvement system. Permit me to say that there is not one good reason to further tax the citizens for these needed improvements. It is a most inconsistent view, and should be provided on every street out of common revenues supplied by taxation.

"TELL ENGLAND"

Sir,—I have viewed with much pleasure two showings of the above picture. The scenes showing the landing at Gallipoli are true to life in every detail. The terrain of the country as shown where the Anzacs and the Imperials made their memorable attack on April 25, 1915, leaves nothing to be desired.

I congratulate Mr. McGrath, the manager of the picture, for the very excellent British pictures he has been shown to be desired.

RECEIVES CALL TO CENTENNIAL

Rev. J. C. Switzer Invited to Become Pastor of Gorge Road United Church

REV. J. C. SWITZER, B.A.

The congregation of the Centennial United Church, Gorge Road, at a special meeting last night, with William M. Scott, presiding, decided to extend a call to Rev. J. C. Switzer, B.A., minister of the Wilkeson Road and Gaston City churches, to become pastor of the Centennial Church in Victoria.

The Centennial Church pulpit recently became vacant through the resignation of Rev. G. C. F. Pringle, who through ill-health was forced to retire from his post. Mr. Pringle was in charge at Centennial for two years.

Rev. J. C. Switzer is well known in church circles on the Coast, having held the pastorate in the former Methodist Church, of Wesley, Vancouver; Third Avenue, New Westminster; Tolmie Street, Vancouver.

and of St. Andrew's United Church, North Vancouver.

Mr. Switzer came to the Island in July, 1930, as pastor of the joint charge of Wilkeson Road and Gaston City. He is an active member of the Presbytery of Victoria, being chairman of the committee on social service and evangelism. Mrs. Switzer has been an efficient worker in the various congregations of which her husband has had charge.

YOUTH GETS SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

Pleas Guilty to Passing Worthless Cheque and Receiving Goods in Exchange

Cecil Carrell pleaded guilty in city police court yesterday morning to a charge of obtaining money and goods from Edward Peterson to the value of over $80, by presenting a worthless cheque. Magistrate George Jay sentenced him to six months.

Carrell admitted that he had cashed the cheque, but denied he had made it out. The cheque was made on a Bank of Nova Scotia form drawn on the Pacific Rubber company and made payable to E. Claxton. The cheque was "protected" by perforation with a rubber stamp, which, with a rubber stamp, was found in the possession of the accused.

When Carrell stated that he did not make the cheque, Magistrate Jay intimated there was a similarity in the writing of the endorsement to that appearing on the face of the document. City Prosecutor C. L. Harrison informed the court that Carrell was on suspended sentence from Vancouver for obtaining goods by false pretences. Stuart Henderson appeared for the accused.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

PENALTIES OR PREMIUMS

"To play for penalties or to play for premiums," as Hanel might have said, but did not, is one of the "rubs" of contract bridge. It can be laid down as a safe general principle that it is generally better to accept the penalty equivalent of what you expect to make at your own bid, rather than attempt to squeeze out of the hand. The reason for this is plain. Played at your own declaration, the opponents' insignificant trumps may make pygmies of your giant aces and kings, and while the reward for making a certain game has been definitely determined, penalties may be even richer than you anticipate. It is, of course, foolish to accept a penalty of 200 points rather than a sure game. Such hunger for penalties is losing bridge and there is no easier opponent to face at the contract table than the player who doubles too early and too often. On the other hand, it is equally unwise to stretch the trick-taking possibilities of your hand too far. The hand played, in a rubber game, gave to the North and South players, both of whom were experts, a nice problem in choosing the preferable course—a sure penalty double or a try for a doubtful slam. Inexpert players should have chosen the safe double, as that reward was sure, and even experts could not have been criticized had they followed that course.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable. South dealer.

1. North's forcing takeout is obvious. His hand contains three and a half honor tricks and two long suits.

2. East has seven tricks with diamonds as trump. Even in the face of the strength shown by North and South, his bid is justified as laying the foundation for a possible bidding defence against North and South's almost certain game.

3. North completes the showing of his two-suited hand.

4. East decides that the penalty he suffers will not be as great as the probable loss if opponents make their slam which from the bidding he feels certain they can do. He hopes, however, that West has length in spades and that by bidding six diamonds he had closed the only safe road to a slam.

5. South has two losing diamonds and only two spades. North has never rebid the spades, so South fears the loss of a spade trick and probably one diamond trick. The sure penalty appears more desirable to him than a questionable attempt at a slam in spades. The bidding has shown that a grand slam is not possible, otherwise North would have disclosed that there were no losers in the diamond suit.

6. North's bid of six spades is open to question. However, he feels reasonably sure that South holds the spade king and his extra length in the spade suit would seem to make it reasonably certain that if South holds that card, there is a good chance to make the slam contract. South's rebid of the heart suit would seem to place a high honor in spades or diamonds in his hand. T. West's double is based as it marks the location of the spade honor. However, this would have been disclosed on the first play of the suit in any event.

In the play, East opened with the diamond king and followed with the knave which North trumped. North now led a spade to South's king, and when East failed to follow, the unfavorable distribution of the trump suit was disclosed. South's last trump was led and the finesse taken. The ace of spades was laid down in order to shorten West's trump holding. Then North led the ace and king of clubs, after which he put the dummy in with a heart and hearts were continued, upon which North discarded his club. West was helpless. He followed suit to hearts three times, but his apparently safely guarded knave of trumps never made a trick. Thus North and South scored the premium for a vulnerable small slam, together with 100 points for their contract. In addition, points below the line as a result of West's unsound double. North's bid of the spade slam was made after a close weighing of the respective probabilities of a worth while set of the adverse contract against the likelihood of the spade slam. It was a close decision with a fortunate outcome.

TODAY'S POINTER

The forcing takeout has aptly been termed the backbone of the forcing system. A forcing takeout is made when one player has opened the bidding and partner responds with a jump bid must be below the game level.

In response to an opening bid of one, a forcing takeout shows the possession of three honor tricks as a minimum and the practical certainty of a game in the hand, provided the best declaration is selected.

As with the opening bid of two in a suit, a forcing takeout commits both partners to keeping the bidding open until a game contract is reached.

PERCY THOMSETT TO FACE CHARGE

Motorist Will Appear in Saanich Police Court Thursday, to Answer Common Danger Count

Percy Thomsett, of 1219 Chapman Street, will appear in Saanich police court Thursday on a charge of driving to the common danger in connection with an automobile accident on the East Saanich Road, Sunday. Mr. Thomsett, it is alleged, failed to return to the scene of the accident, in which the eight-year-old son of George Earl, of 2133 Spring Road, was injured.

Mr. Earl was driving south on the East Saanich Road, near Saanich, when his front left fender was struck by an automobile being driven north. Earl's car was jolted to the side of the road, and his son thrown from the car. The latter suffered minor injuries to the back of his head.

Mr. Thomsett yesterday, it is said, stated to police that it was his car that had struck the machine driven by Mr. Earl, and that he had failed to report the accident earlier because he believed he had merely grazed the automobile in passing.

COLLEGE OPENED FOR FALL TERM

Victoria Institution Had 270 on the Register at Initial Exercises Held Yesterday

With a total of 270 students on the registration roll, an increase of fifteen over 1930, Victoria College was formally opened for the Fall term yesterday morning when members of the faculty greeted the students in the college auditorium at what is termed the opening exercises. Lecture classes, however, do not open until today.

College heads in attendance to welcome the students were: Professor P. H. Elliott, principal; Dr. E. B. Paul, principal emeritus; and Professors Jeanette A. Cann, Ruth H. Humphreys, E. Sanderson-Mongin, G. F. Black, G. Cunningham, E. Stanley Farr and Walter H. Gage.

At the opening, Principal Elliott addressed the student body and urged them to learn to work, to study, and to think for themselves. He mentioned the present social disturbances throughout the entire world and intimated that results might lead to a big change in the whole social structure. He expressed his faith in the younger generation to surmount the difficulties of the period and learn disciplined thinking.

Dr. Paul, principal emeritus, addressed the group briefly and told them of his experiences as a freshman at the University of Aberdeen, twenty-eight years ago, and compared the conditions of those days with these. He urged the students to make the most of their college days as, he contended, they were the happiest of their lives, if they cared to make them so. Other speakers were, Professor E. Stanley Farr, vice-principal, and Kenneth G. Ross, president of the Students' Council.

Minister of Education Defends Department—Did Not Curtail Holidays

CHILLIWACK, Sept. 21 (CP).—Stating that some school districts of British Columbia were not playing the game with the Government, and that if he were to enforce the law to the letter, there would be a considerable reduction in the cost of education in the province, the Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, made a vigorous defence of his department before the British Columbia School Trustees in convention here tonight.

"I am trying to give you credit for earnestness and honesty of purpose, and I ask you to extend the same credit for doing my best, and if we each make allowance for the other, we shall get on well," he said.

"If my opponents knew as much as I know of the inside workings of the department, they might have a very different opinion of myself," he added.

NOT HIS FAULT

He touched on character building of the child by stating it was mostly in the home, and before the child had started school. And that the work trustees were doing was only a very small part of his education.

Mr. Hinchliffe then said he felt very hurt by being accused of stealing two weeks of the children's summer holidays.

"I haven't stolen the children's holidays," he said. "I have only carried out the wishes of your association, passed by resolutions during the past five years; and who do you think these resolutions were sponsored by?" asked the minister.

"Burnaby," came the reply from various parts of the floor. "Yes; from Burnaby," repeated Mr. Hinchliffe.

Smiley were authorized to go to Victoria to conclude an agreement with the Government. The council will ask for approval of a scheme to spend $7,500 on roads and $14,000 for a sewerage system for Chemainus.

TELLS COLUMBIA W.A. OF CHINA

Miss Gertrude Bowden-Smith Addresses Board Meeting—Many Reports Read During Day

The splendid address of Miss Gertrude Bowden-Smith before the diocesan board of Columbia W.A. might well be entitled "China From the Inside," as the speaker described the Chinese people as she had come in contact with them during the past twenty-one years. Her educational work has brought Miss Bowden-Smith into close touch with the high-civilization of Peking, as the ancient city of Peking is now named.

The diocese of Honan has provided Miss Bowden-Smith with many valuable friends, as it is to Peking that the missionaries have come for their language studies. Dr. Margaret Phillips having been at one time associated with her school.

The effects of the various changes of government were graphically described, but Peking had suffered few of the horrors that have been prevalent in other parts of China. The Government regulations with regard to the veneration of Sun Yat Sen had in them a valuable element which it had been possible to turn to good account in her school.

Miss Bowden-Smith described some of the difficulties found by foreigners in renting a house, also the difficulties that surround carrying on of a school, which must now have a Chinese principal, and religious teaching is forbidden.

Miss Bowden-Smith closed with a tribute to the value of Christian ideals and faith in the lives of those who have embraced Christianity, in bringing courage and true happiness which were before unknown.

Mrs. Pope, expressed sincere thanks to Miss Bowden-Smith for her interesting and informing address, which was heartily endorsed by all present.

MORNING SESSION
In the absence of Mrs. Dickson, who is on her way East to attend the annual meeting of the Dominion board, Mrs. P. C. Nivins, first vice-president, was the chair, and welcomed the visitors at the opening of the morning session.

The Scripture portion was impressively read by Mrs. Harper, president of St. Saviour's parochial branch, in whose name she welcomed the board, and expressed pleasure at having the opportunity of meeting so many. A high tribute of praise was paid to Miss Sill for her splendid organization of the refreshments provided at the garden party at Bishop's Close in August.

Miss Sill expressed her thanks to all who had assisted her, including members of the Toc H organization, and of the Parish Guild.

The treasurer, Mrs. Hartley, gave the final receipts from the garden party as $359, which brings the balance required to meet the cost of the memorial windows down to $916.

The Dorcas secretary, Mrs. A. S. Christie, read letters of appreciation thanks for the bales from St. Michael's Indian Residential School at Alert Bay, to which two quilts made by Junior branches were sent; also a letter from Bishop Strickland, Dawson, Yukon, expressing thanks for a bale of clothing.

DONATIONS WELCOME
Miss Millicent Wright, convener of the overseas bales, also wrote to express thanks for the articles sent by Columbia W.A., which had been sent to Kangra and Palampur.

Will Be Christened Today in Ottawa

THE important ceremony in connection with the christening of the infant son of His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada and the Countess Beasborough, doesn't seem to trouble the central figure, who smiles blissfully in his sleep, dreaming of those things which only a child can dream. The layout shows (inset) the Earl and Countess of Beasborough and Sir Robert Borden (lower left), who will represent His Majesty King George, who is to be godfather to the little fellow. The christening takes place in Ottawa today.

Wedding Is Held in Vancouver
A wedding of interest to many friends in Victoria drew a large congregation to St. George's Church, Laurel Street, Vancouver, at 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, when Rev. C. C. Owens united in marriage Kathleen Patricia, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Frank Slavin and Mrs. Slavin, of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, to Mr. David Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Annan, of Vancouver. The ceremony was held in a room tastefully decorated with autumn flowers and greenery by friends of the bride.

Madrigal Society Begins Rehearsals
The Victoria Madrigal Society, under the conductorship of Stanley Bulley, resumes its rehearsals this season on Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock at the Memorial Hall. This season's activities will include not only madrigals of the sixteenth century, but also contemporary works with orchestra, which will be performed some time during the Spring. There are a few vacancies in all sections for singers with good voices and for good sight-readers. At the recent general meeting of the society, the hope was expressed that it might gradually develop into a larger choral society. Application for membership should be addressed to the conductor.

Weddings
GORDON-LETTERS
The marriage took place quietly at Duncan on September 13, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when Rev. Mr. Rollo united Miss Ellen J. Letters, of Cowichan Bay, and Mr. Adam Gordon, of Hillbank. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. James Wood, of Cobble Hill, her attendant being Miss Elizabeth Conacher, of Cowichan Bay, and the groom was supported by Mr. Emil Friessing, of Cowichan. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. William Nelson, sister of the bride. The table was charmingly decorated in shades of pink, mauve and gold, and set by a three-tier wedding cake. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon left for Seattle, where they spent their honeymoon.

HERMES-HALPIN
St. Anne's Church, Tacoma, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Eleanor Marie Halpin, youngest daughter of Mr. W. E. Halpin and the late Mrs. Halpin, became the bride of Mr. Wade Hermes, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hermes, of Tacoma. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Murphy. The bride, who entered the church with her father, was charmingly dressed in a gown of beige chiffon trimmed in fur and wore a hat to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Kathleen James, who wore a powder blue georgette gown trimmed in cream lace and wore a hat in matching tones. Her bouquet was of gladioli. The groom was supported by Mr. Eric James. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father. Later Mr. and Mrs. Hermes motored to Vancouver, B.C., where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride is traveling in a smart printed crepe frock with a short fur coat and accessories to match. Burgess Bedtime Stories

The Lost Shoes Are Found

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

How oft when ignorance attends
An air of mystery it lends —Farmer Brown's Boy.

High and low Farmer Brown's Boy hunted for his lost shoes. As he expressed it, he turned that old cabin inside out, but no shoes. Then he felt sure that Stumpy, the old Prospector with whom he was camping, had hidden them just to tease him. When Stumpy returned from looking after the horses Farmer Brown's Boy was still looking for those lost shoes.

"Well, well, haven't you trailed those shoes yet?" cried Stumpy. "Seems like they were big enough to leave a trail of some sort."

"I give up. I guess I'm no trailer. Now, suppose you tell me where you hid them," said Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Me hide them! I tell you I haven't laid eyes on them?" exclaimed Stumpy, pretending to be indignant.

"Yes, but you didn't say that you hadn't laid hands on them," retorted Farmer Brown's boy good-naturedly.

"Wasn't you telling about some visitors in the night?" asked Stumpy. "Seems like if I had had visitors and had lost me a pair of shoes, I'd just drop around friendly like and return that cal and look around while I was doing it. Yes, sir, seems like that is what I'd do."

"But those skunks didn't take those shoes. I saw them when they left and they didn't take a thing," protested Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Were they the only visitors?" inquired Stumpy.

"Now you speak of it, there were some others, or one other anyway, but it was only a Rat. He wouldn't take my shoes," replied Farmer Brown's Boy.

"There are Rats and Rats, and you never can tell what notion a Rat will get into his head," specially up here in the mountains. You come along and eat breakfast and then we'll see what we can finger for nearly ten."

Acute Gastritis

Gets a Knockout

Mr. Arthur E. Root, of West Croydon, writes:—"Discharged from His Majesty's Forces with acute gastritis, I was left with a very weak inside, and those who suffer similarly know how very careful one must be in what they eat and what medicines they take. Constipation and indigestion generally commenced my attacks: headaches and bad breath naturally followed; but to-day I am able to eat anything I fancy. My secret I can honestly recommend, lies in your pills. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. All druggists 25¢ and 75¢ red pills.

MINARD'S LINIMENT

VALUABLE SEED GRAIN DESTROYED BY FIRE

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. Sept. 21 (CP).—Fire last night completely destroyed the seed cleaning and seed storage of the Dominion Government Experimental Station here. The loss is estimated at more than $30,000 in actual money. In addition, however, seed developed in ten years of experimental breeding was destroyed and the value of this cannot be estimated.

The blaze occurred during an electric storm and is believed to have resulted from lightning causing a short circuit in the wiring at the electric plant.

SUCCESSFUL FAIR HELD AT DUNCAN

Clear Weather Brings Large Crowd to Cowichan Fall Exhibition on Saturday

DUNCAN, Sept. 21.—The heavy rains of Friday, which seriously affected the attendance on the first day of the Cowichan Fall Fair, gave place to blue skies on Saturday, and the gate receipts for the final day were entirely satisfactory.

The fair was officially declared open Saturday afternoon by Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor, who offered to the committee a trophy for competition next year in the purebred stock division.

How IT STARTED

These gullies were known as "deer scrapes"; and because it was very much easier to fall into them than to climb out, getting or falling into a "scrape" came to take on a wider significance.

STARKED
JEAN WATSON

GETTING INTO A "SCRAPE"
Today, to get into a "scrape" is to get into almost any kind of trouble; but in the times in which the phrase first began to be used, it meant a particular kind of trouble arising out of local conditions.

It is expressed in a poem born in the days when most of England was forest land, and when deer, running wild over the country, cut sharp paths through the woods.

According to a contemporary clergyman, the Rev. H. T. Ellis, in 1800, a woman walking through Powderham Park, Devon, while attempting to cross the stag's "scrape" was killed by the animal.

An employer once had occasion to dismiss a servant for being idle, and, having made an unsuccessful attempt to vindicate his character, the latter said, mournfully, "Ah, I have been in a scrape before I have gone half an hour!"

"I shan't mind that," answered the employer cheerfully, "if I don't miss you."

DOMINION Actor—or carpenter? Two careers were open to the youthful Maurice Chevalier, and he chose acting, in spite of his brother's protests. "Let him try it," said Chevalier's mother. "If he fails he can then become a carpenter. I don't think I would have liked carpentering anyhow," says Maurice, who is now showing at the Dominion Theatre in "The Smiling Lieutenant."

CAPITOL Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Theatre whose initial starring vehicle is "Chances," the war romance was determined from childhood that what success he might attain should be through his own efforts, and not because he is the son of a famous man. In "Chances" he plays the part of a British soldier of the Great War. The role is the greatest of the short and brilliant career of the star. Alan Dwan directed.

COLISEUM "Tell England," the magnificent screen memorial to youth and its heroism in war, now showing at the Coliseum Theatre, is the film version of the book of the same title which, as a best seller, has been read by all classes of people all the world over. Hundreds of thousands of people have been enthralled by this moving tale of romantic youth which has reached its thirty-third edition.

Y.M.C.A. Apple Day Plans Progressing Steadily as Committees Work Untriflingly

Considerable interest is being shown by members of the Y.M.C.A. in the apple day to be staged on October 3 in an effort to raise funds for the association.

Committees, consisting of both boys and men, are meeting regularly and reporting on the progress of the drive for donations and assistance.

Discussions of plans for campaigning are frequent and it is predicted that this will be one of the most extensive drives ever initiated by the organization.

Prominent men of Victoria have readily offered their support to those interested in the work, realizing that it is a most worthy cause and one needing the wholehearted support of citizens to make it a success.

CREATE FINANCIAL ASSET

Too much cannot be said of those who are giving their efforts untriflingly and working day and night to assist the association and create a financial asset for it. It must not be thought by the however, that the association is now greatly in debt. Its present liabilities include only local debts and salaries, which, although not behind in payment, will need financial aid to carry them over the next few months.

No donation is too small for the association, which is a 50 piece or a $10 bill, and when the canvassers begin their work on the first Saturday morning in October, the slogan that will be in each and everyone's mind will be "Have Every Citizen Eating an Apple."
